AMENDMENT 1 – RURAL ROTHER

The draft CED pattern considered by Governance Committee was based on district ward boundaries proposed by members of Rother District Council. The pattern of CEDs can be further improved to take account of a number of important historical, geographical and community links that are present in the current configuration. More specifically, this amendment seeks to:

- retain better connections between parishes that are more relevant to the electorate and, in particular, avoids the breakup of Icklesham Parish;
- retain Brede parish within the Southern Rother CED; Brede parish has more natural south facing links with Westfield and Hastings outskirts (and the Hastings and Rother parliamentary constituency) by virtue of the A28.
- avoid the movement of parishes between parliamentary constituencies therefore allowing easier ongoing connections with MPs.

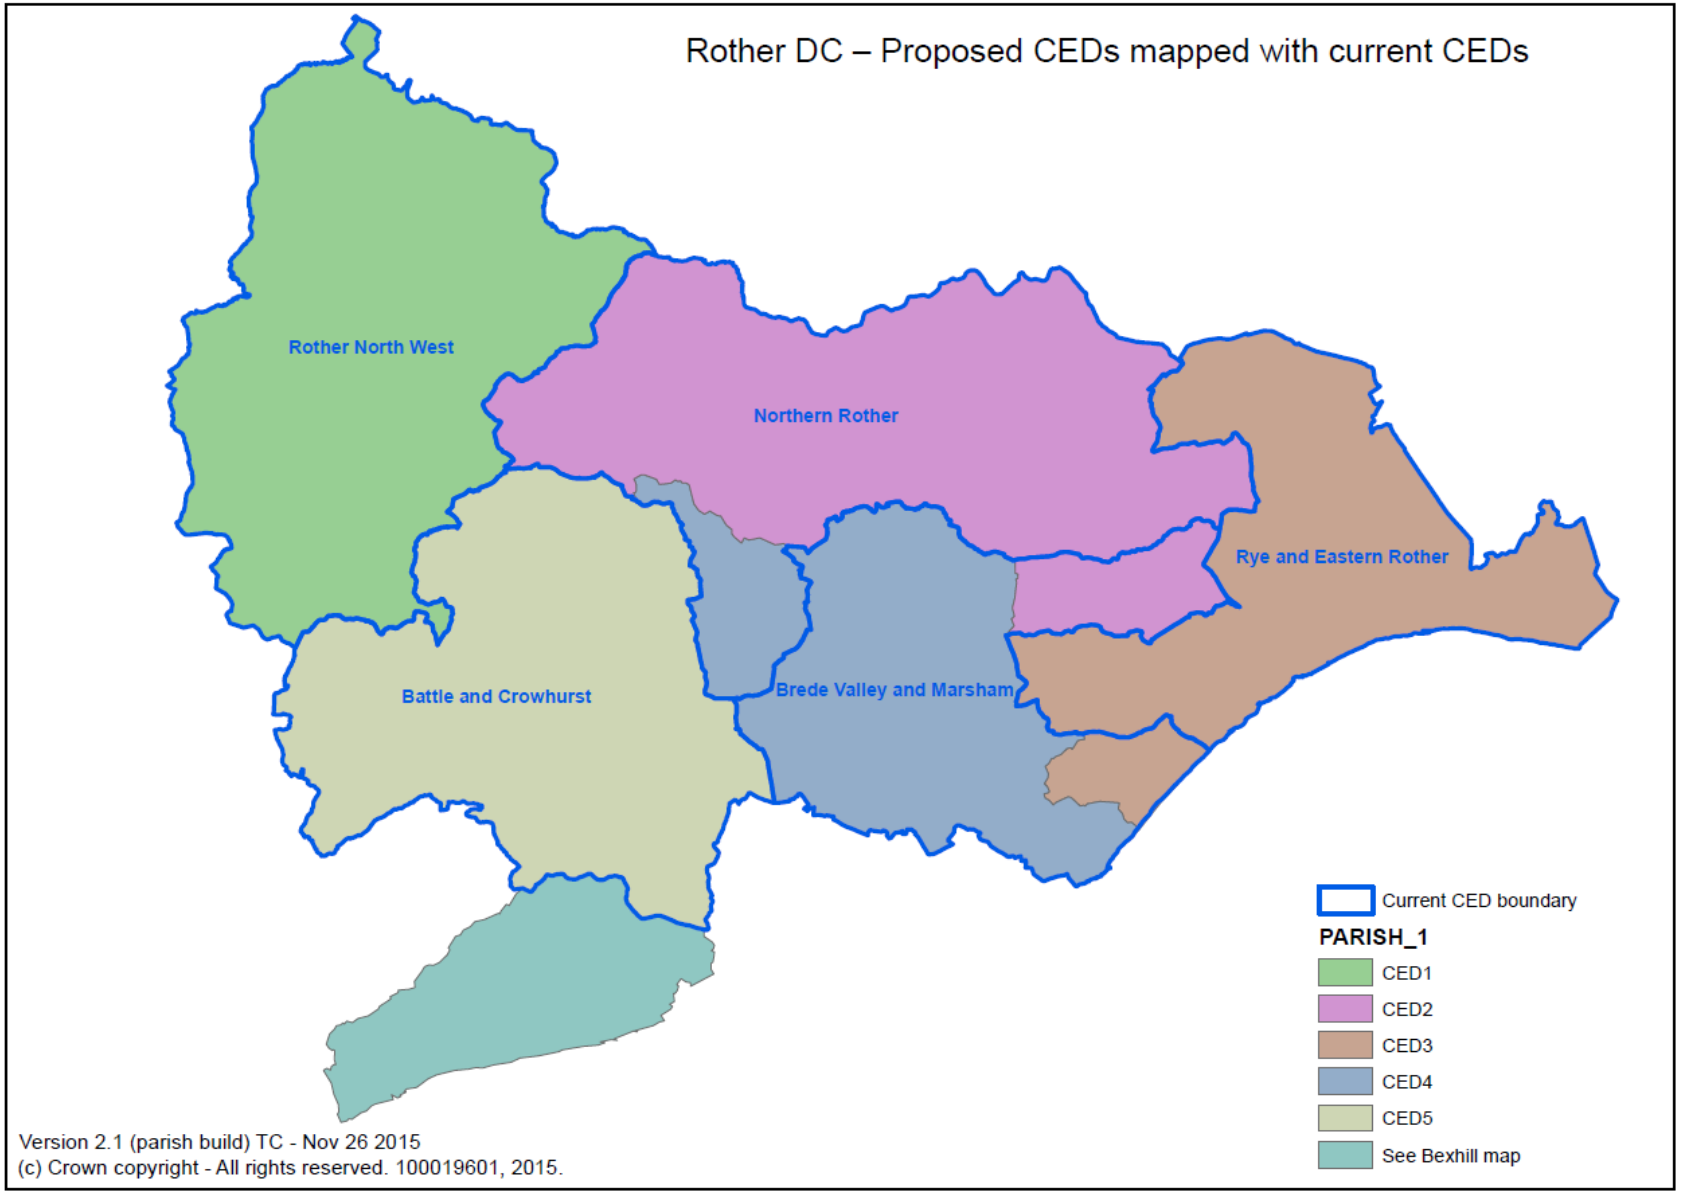

The present configuration of CEDs contains imbalances in elector numbers that are improved by this amendment.

In summary, the proposed pattern is based on parish boundaries and is similar to the current arrangement in many ways: it retains locally important community and geographical links and successfully addresses an imbalance in elector numbers in the current CED pattern.

AMENDMENT 2 – LEWES DISTRICT

The proposed grouping of 'coastal' CEDs considered by Governance Committee was based on a combination of proposed district ward boundaries (on the coast), parish boundaries (in the rural areas) and retaining Lewes town as a single community as far as practicable. This amendment seeks to improve the CED pattern further. It will:

- retain Peacehaven, Telscombe and East Saltdean entirely within the Brighton Kemptown parliamentary constituency therefore allowing easier connection with MPs
- retaining important locally-recognised connections between Peacehaven North and Peacehaven East and Peacehaven West and Telscombe.
- Retain Lewes CED as it currently stands to reflect the important community links that cannot easily be split.
- Ensure a more geographically efficient size of CEDs across the district.

The resulting impact on the pattern of CEDs is as shown in the map and table below.

AMENDMENT 3 – WEALDEN DISTRICT

The LGBCE has determined that Wealden District Council will see a reduction in the number of its councillors from 55 to 45. The County Council will see an increase of one councillor to 15 for the Wealden district area. Wealden District Council has proposed a complete revision of the district ward pattern. Based on that pattern, the County Council proposes a coterminous division pattern as reflected on the following table and maps.

This amendment includes small adjustments to the sections highlighted in yellow made in the final version of the Wealden District council to reflect better community links.

(The precise position of the ward boundaries proposed by Wealden District council can be found on the Wealdon District council website).
