Appendix 1: Consultation results report

Drug and alcohol recovery services

About this consultation

This consultation is about the proposal to stop funding drug and alcohol recovery services. It started on 3 October and closed on 28 November 2024.

Taking part in the consultation

The consultation survey was available to complete online and people could download a printable version. Emails and letters were also accepted.

All of the consultations were promoted in our newsletters for residents, providers and staff. We also shared news stories with partners in the statutory and voluntary sectors to include in their newsletters for residents, organisations and staff.

General posters were shared with library teams and each affected service had a dedicated poster to put up in their service or building.

The consultations were widely promoted in the local media and consultation leads talked about the proposals at relevant stakeholder meetings.

Who took part in the consultation

We received 317 responses to this consultation. The table below shows the different ways in which people took part. We also had 1 late survey response received after the consultation closed.

Respondent method	Total
Survey	301
Emails	16

There were also 10 responses submitted by email or letter that addressed all of the consultations more generally. A general petition opposing the funding gap proposals was submitted by Lewes Liberal Democrats. It was signed by 100 people.

People were given the option of answering 'about you' equality questions in the survey, with 78% of respondents choosing to do so.

- We had responses from people living in all parts of the county, although Hastings and Rother were the top areas, with 21% and 12% respectively.
- Nearly half of the respondents use or have used the services, or are family members or carers of those who have used them (48%).

- More women took part than men, with women making up 52% of the known genders of respondents, compared to 25% for men.
- The majority who took part were White British (69% compared to 9% for other ethnicities).
- A third of respondents said they have a physical or mental health condition or long-term illness and 22% care for a family member or friend.
- We had respondents from across all age groups, with 45 to 54 years old being the most common (17%).

Key messages

These key messages reflect the feedback received from organisations, groups and individuals across surveys, meetings and other feedback such as emails and letters.

- The majority of people and organisations who took part in the consultation disagree with the proposal to stop funding recovery services, although one in 10 respondents to the survey did agree with it.
- People said it is a vital service that provides a lifeline to people who would otherwise struggle to cope, particularly as there is already stigma around drug and alcohol misuse.
- The services are highly valued as providing equally essential support for both those who struggle with substance misuse and the families of those misusing.
- The services are seen as a safe space, with the peer support element being particularly important to people. Some respondents said they would not be alive if it wasn't for the services.
- Respondents feel that there are few other alternative services offering recovery support in the way this service does, and that offering treatment without recovery makes no sense.
- Grant funding for treatment services coming to an end at the same time will compound the risks involved in stopping the funding of recovery services.
- Without these services it is likely that people will experience poorer recovery, which will affect their physical and mental health. They will be at increased risk of relapse as they are pushed into crisis.
- People who've been supported by the service spoke about how they would not be employed, or functioning in and contributing to society, without the support of the service to remain recovered.
- The family and carers of those who can no longer access recovery services will also be negatively impacted in similar ways, while the removal of specialist carer services for recovery is not replaceable with universal carers services.

- Respondents feel the decision will take away any hope people have for recovery, and that to close the service is a matter of life and death, resulting in a rise in mortality, whether by suicide or deaths caused by substance misuse.
- The fact that there aren't alternative services people can turn to will mean that there will be increased pressure and cost passed on within the Council, as well as to other organisations such as charities, hospitals and the police.
- Drug and alcohol misuse is often a cause of anti-social behaviour and crime, and can lead to homelessness. Stopping recovery services will therefore risk increases in all these areas, which will be made worse by other proposed cuts to the floating support service and supported accommodation.
- An increase in crime and homelessness will have a knock-on effect for the local economy and community. This will be particularly felt in Hastings and Eastbourne, which have higher rates of substance misuse.
- Respondents say that the proposal shouldn't go ahead and that the services should continue to be funded in future. In some cases, people felt that recovery should be prioritised over treatment services, as they help people to begin functioning within society again.
- The role of prevention was also highlighted as something that should be focused on.

Sample quotes

These comments are a small selection of the responses we received in the consultation. They reflect the key themes or offer a specific suggestion.

Organisation comments:

- Adfam: "Our contention is that the closure of the service will have a direct and negative impact on families for whom there is no suitable alternative to deliver the specialist support that Adfam provides. This impact will be felt on individual family members; where children are involved, in being able to mitigate against intergenerational impacts and possible tendencies towards substance misuse;...it can hamper the sustainable recovery or support to access treatment of people using substances problematically."
- Care for the Carers: "The [Adfam] service supports a large number of carers, by providing a high standard of specialist support. This could not be absorbed into general carers services, as appears to be implied in the consultation information... These [Seaview] projects provide an invaluable support to general carers services, in particular enabling us to refer carers with the most complex caring roles on for specialist support."
- Eastbourne Borough Council: "The complex needs of many people experiencing housing difficulties means that they may well also need to make use of drug or alcohol support if they are to make an effective and long-term change to their housing circumstances. Without this element, improvements to an individuals' housing circumstances may be at best temporary."

- East Sussex Recovery Alliance: "If there is no cohesive service involving both crisis intervention and then sustained support for people in recovery, there is a strong likelihood of an increased relapse rate. This is corrosive for people seeking to change their lives and the lives of those around them."
- Hastings Borough Council: "Drug and alcohol misuse are a cause of homelessness and a significant contributor to crime and disorder, if not treated together with other services which are being proposed to cut... Limiting or withdrawing these services would lead to an increase in people facing street homelessness and poverty, which in turn will increase the demands on community safety partners such as Sussex Police and indeed on ESCC's other support services."
- Heads of Housing at the district and borough authorities: "Recovery and treatment services are essential to supporting people to sustain accommodation and becoming at risk of homelessness. The proposed reductions coincide with the end of several other grant-funded services supporting people with substance dependency needs ..."
- Kent Surrey and Sussex Probation Service: "The fact that drug use is a key criminogenic factor would mean that reducing access to recovery treatment could lead to increased offending rates, as individuals are unable to access support to address their substance use need and maintain recovery...Substance use [is] also a consideration when looking at adult and child safeguarding, so a reduction in recovery services could impact on some of the more vulnerable within our society."
- Lewes Town Council: "Cutting Recovery Services for drug and alcohol misuse is a false economy. It will inevitably push service users onto already overstretched services such as GPs, A&E departments, Police services and local councils, including District, Town, and Parish Councils. In extreme cases, this includes individuals who may die unnecessarily due to lack of access to mental health and addiction services."
- NHS Sussex: "The proposal to remove all funding from recovery services should be considered in context, against a backdrop of a significant reduction in Drug & Alcohol funding coming into East Sussex, as a result of the end of Project Adder grant funding. This means other services may be unlikely to be able to reduce the impact of the closure of recovery services, if they are anticipated to be part of planned mitigations."
- Seaview: "We believe there is a serious risk to both individuals, their families and the local community if these services cease. The services support people with multiple compound needs, including current and exoffenders, those being released from prison, [and those] experiencing homelessness, various forms of abuse and mental ill health, to name but a few."

• Wealden Citizens Advice: "There can't be treatment and then no recovery plan or support. Clients are constantly at risk of reusing and without the support network this increases the likelihood."

Individual comments:

- "The support and help I received was vital and enabled me to make the transition from a 'zombie' who was not contributing in any meaningful way to society, to someone who has a professional level job in the charity sector, and fully contributing to society".
- "Funding must not be stopped. These services are vitally important. The work the staff do is invaluable to people's mental and physical health. They literally save people's lives and their families."
- "I think these recovery services are vital. At a time when illegal drugs are easier to access than ever before, this service is so important. I am the parent of a child who was deeply addicted, and I used Adfam to help me support my child as he recovered from addiction."
- "Alcohol recovery services through Change Grow Live and East Sussex Recovery Alliance have helped me regain some control over my life, stay sober, and stay alive. Without them I would be dead by now. Drug and alcohol recovery services are a matter of life and death."
- "I was supported by Adfam last year due to a family member's alcohol and substance use. Without them, I feel my mental and physical health would have declined dramatically, causing me to seek medical help, therefore burdening the NHS/MH services but because of their support this was not necessary. They were able to guide me through this stressful time and support me by educating me and teaching me how to cope."
- "It would impact the most vulnerable in our society who need help the most. Hospital admissions and crime would both increase. The hold on communities of organised crime drugs gangs would increase. Stopping or reducing these services will increase costs for the council and government in the long term."
- "I have benefitted enormously from the peer support session and specifically the family support worker session for me on a 1-2-1."
- "Adfam has been the only service available to me, as a partner of an addict. They have listened, offered peer support, guided me through dark times and supported my mental health. There is no other service like it."
- "Although there are many 'models' of addiction, one thing that all practitioners in the field can agree on is that stopping or giving up a substance is the easy part. Staying off that substance is where recovery comes in. By stopping funding to recovery services one might as well stop funding to treatment services as well."
- "By slashing the Recovery Services you are slashing any hope for both the people in treatment and recovery. It also sends a signal to those active users

- that there is no point engaging with treatment as there is no escape, so you may as well stay where you are and continue a life of drugs and crime."
- "You just have to walk around Hastings Centre to understand the social challenges faced by the community. It is evident in the level of homelessness, street drinking, and unemployment seen. The impact of not having a path to offer affected members of the community to get in to recovery will result in those social issues going unaddressed and escalating."

Results summary across all methods

Views on the proposal

Survey: 89% of respondents disagree with the proposal to stop funding recovery services. The overwhelming majority chose strongly disagree over disagree (86% compared to 3%). A small percentage of people agreed with the proposal to stop funding these services (10%).

The top 10 themes for why people agree or disagree with the proposal are:

- 1) Service: Service is vital/needed (114 comments)
- 2) Impact: increased pressure on other services (63)
